EASTERN NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

A Present to Cardinal McCloskey.

NEW YORK, May 21.—Cardinal McCloskey was yesterday presented with a diamond cross worth $10,000 by a young lady pupil of St. Vincent Institute in this city.

Fire.

A portion of the ax factory of Weed & Becker's manufacturing company's building burned to-day. Loss, $50,000; insured.

What did he do with it?

CHICAGO, May 21.—A Boston special says with reference to the defalcation of Abraham Jackson the great mystery is to account for the use to which so large money as he lived economically, had no costly vices, and did not speculate.

The Indian Chiefs not Satisfied.

A Washington special says the Sioux delegation now there promises to be troublesome and expensive. While the terms their real sentiments are learned, it is said, are not satisfied with the government officials are not interpreter, and the government officials are under suspicions of the half breeds, who act in that capacity for their chiefs. There is also evident disparity of harmony among the chiefs.

The Black Hills Question.

In conclusion as to the abrogation of the Black Hills treaty may be arrived at. At the conference yesterday between the government authorities and the delegation from the several territorial officers, the latter not being unanimous in their views on the subject, there was a decided difference of opinion as to the existence of gold in the Hills. Governor [illegible] of Wyoming, insisted that the existence of gold there could not be denied, for many of the Indians were much inclined to discredit the story. He said there was no gold there, and that few persons wished to go there except such as would cut a throat or scuttle a ship. He said a few of the good people of his territory had been killed and had violated the treaty by going into the country, but he was confident that in this case the people of Dakota had been more moderate than their neighbors. Gov. Thayer here asked if the conference was a burlesque and left in a huff. The prospects of the negotiation of a treaty seem promising.

Removal Failures.

NEW YORK, May 21.—London dispatches say there are rumors of failures there, pointing to a panic in the iron trade; also, a Lombard street banking house.

Gold Bank in Oakland, California.

The comptroller of the currency has authorized the Union National Gold Bank of Oakland, California, with a capital of $100,000, to commence business.

An Indian Prisoner Shot.

LAKE CITY, Fla., May 21.—Greybeard, one of the most troublesome Indian prisoners, on the way to Jacksonville, jumped from the train this morning, while running twenty-five miles per hour. He was fired upon by the guards, and killed about two miles.

The Oscoola Fire.

TYRONE, Pa., May 21.—The confusion is so great all telegraph lines are busy with railroad business. It is impossible to get much further information than that the fire at Oscoola. Hundreds of people are homeless and friendless, destitute of clothing and provisions. The burgess of Huntingdon was telegraphed this morning for food and clothing for the destitute. Relief is badly needed. A large number of bridges, many feet of trestle work on the railroad are destroyed. The shipment of coal will be delayed at least ten days. Total insurance reported thus far is only $150,000. Fire is raging in the woods at Snowshoe City. Were several houses, a number of cars and trestle work are destroyed.

Another Destructive Fire.

PERRYVILLE, Pa., May 21.—A fire in the vicinity of Chapman colliery, destroyed twelve miners' houses, the men and their real sentiments are learned, in the act. It appears they are dissatisfied to accede to the wishes of those who brought them to Washington. They are not satisfied with the government officials are not interpreter, and the government officials are under suspicions of the half breeds, who act in that capacity for their chiefs. There is also evident disparity of harmony among the chiefs.

The Forest Fire Still Raging.

TYRONE, Pa., May 22.—Fire is still raging furiously throughout the woods. About 2:0 houses have been reported in Oscoola, and 400 families rendered homeless. [illegible] Great praise is due D. D. Wood, train runner at Tyrone, who loaded a lot of box cars and got women and children, and sent them through the burning forest at the speed of a flying engine. Four trips were made, and about a thousand people taken to a place of safety. Huntzdale, six miles from Oscoola, is reported entirely destroyed. The fire is spreading rapidly toward Huntzdale, and at latest accounts had reached Parmelle, six miles from there. The railroad company's track from Oscoola to Huntzdale is burned, and will not be shipped for some time. A meeting will be held to-night for the sufferers.

The heaviest losers by the Oscoola fire are as follows: Pennsylvania R.R. Co., $65,000; Liveright, Gratz & Co., $30,000; Gaius Wood, $30,000; John Patton, $25,000; Isaac Taylor, $20,000; Walker Bros., Bailey, Dr. D. R. Good, $10,000; G. M. Brisbin, $10,000; V. C. Slagle, $10,000; James H. Lipton, $10,000; W. L. Gibbons, $10,000; Mrs. Gibbons, $10,000; A. Cuderson, $10,000; Emmet Eggers, $8,000; Presbyterian church, $8,000, and a host of smaller losses. Insurance on mills reach probably a million outside of the Morrison and lumber company mills. The Morrison mill is insured in Philadelphia, and the insurance will reach $600,000. Later reports say a woman named Sneburger was burned to death.

Another Report from the Fires.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., May 22.—The Stoddartsville [illegible] and sheds were destroyed by the fire last night, also two dwellings. Mrs. Cox, aged 90 years, was burned to death. The buildings ignited from fires in the woods.

R. Springer. The building will be constructed to hold the annual industrial exposition as well as [illegible] festival.

The Great Defalcation.

BOSTON, May 21.—Further development of frauds of Abraham Jackson, the missing lawyer, are constantly being made. The full loss by his transaction will probably never be known, as much of the property is in trust. Enough is known to indicate the losses aggregate $800,000. Those who knew Jackson best do not think he committed suicide. The circumstances indicate that he has, on the contrary, everything appears as though his last transactions were carried on with one object, having money, and there can be but little doubt his disappearance was the climax of his operations, perhaps premeditated. It is believed he has carried a large sum away from Boston. Attachments have recently been put upon the estate of Jackson by the following parties and corporations: Traders' National Bank $34,000; Third National Bank, $26,000; Mary A. Dorr, $25,000; Suffolk National Bank, $50,000; Eamont National Bank, $10,000; Tremont National Bank, $30,000; A. D. Hubbard and others, $15,000; Central National Bank, $60,000; Boylston National Bank, $15,000; S. Hill, jr., trustee, $4,000; Shoe and Leather National Bank, $1,000; Abigail E. Hildreth, $1,000; Commonwealth of Massachusetts, $40,000; M. C. Fontaricye, $4,000.

THE TILTON-BEECHER TRIAL.

NEW YORK, May 21.—In the Beecher trial this morning Judge Porter continued his summing up of the case for defendant. He commenced on the testimony of Bowen, who, he said, testified that Beecher didn't advise the dismissal of Tilton, but on cross examination admitted that Beecher told him things about Tilton's character. Counsel pointed to certain alleged inconsistencies in Bowen's testimony, and argued that Tilton and Moulton, knowing the impending downfall of the former, arranged a conspiracy by which Beecher was to be made the instrument of reinstating Tilton with Bowen, and after convincing Mrs. Tilton, that there was a conspiracy against her husband to drive him from the Independent and Brooklyn Union, Moulton went to Beecher and took him to Tilton's house, on the night of December 30th, not, said Porter, for the instruction of Beecher, but for the overthrowing of Henry C. Bowen and reinstatement of Tilton; and they brought their machinery to bear upon Beecher, counsel pointed to the letters of all these years. He asked if it were true that on the 3d of July Mrs. Tilton confessed to her husband commission of adultery. Did the jury believe Tilton would ask that letter for his own protection, and then keep it in his possession. Do you believe, gentlemen, that if this paper was in Moulton's keeping he did not read it? Do you believe that this letter of confession with threats to blow out his brains, while the latter of apology was kept? Why, gents, this paper had served its purpose to the conspirators and it was disposed of. It was not a confession at all, but an accusation, which was answered by Mrs. Tilton the 30th of December. On the night of that day Moulton goes to Beecher to obtain the letter of retraction. Beecher said it was for his family and his own protection. He called that he should keep this paper, and Moulton cajoled him into agreeing it to keep up friendship with Tilton. These troubles Moulton laid the blame of on Mrs. Tilton and Mrs. Tilton on Beecher, and her family troubles, which Moulton said had nearly turned her head. He also said to Beecher that Mrs. Tilton loved him, (Beecher) better than she did her husband, and heard Beecher replied that you have to do is to join hands with me in an effort to set matters right. Beecher said if he had caused all this trouble in the family and won this woman's love from her husband, he was willing to do anything to repair the injury. Placed in such a position, what should Henry Ward Beecher have done? What would any man have done? No person could follow any course but that of warding off the fire, and the balance of the houses have not [illegible].

The hour of recess arriving, court adjourned till next Monday. Fearing being overcome by the heat and greatly indisposed, Judge Neilson stated if counsel didn't finish next week he would hold court Saturday "and on Sunday too, perhaps," suggested Mr. Beach and he would be willing to sit more than two days in his summing up, and therefore he desired to know what space of time would be occupied by the other side, but Evarts could give him no satisfactory answer.

The emigrants lately arrived in Oregon are coming through the country. The Medford Reporter says: "This morning our town is well filled with strangers who have come from the Eastern States, and are about to see what there is to be seen in the part of Oregon. Incendiarism.

LOS ANGELES, May 21.—Considerable excitement exists over the number of fires that occur in this city. It seems that they are the work of incendiaries. There is but little doubt the city is infested with a band determined to burn all the property they can. A man was seen to set one of the fires last night. He escaped before he could be identified. A person was also seen leaving the rear of Dotter & Bradley's furniture store a few minutes before the alarm was given. The fire which consumed Stoddard's barn and stock was also set by a malicious person. Dotter & Bradley lost stock of the value of $25,000; insured for $14,000; damaged buildings, $3,000.

The Killing of Kallman.

The following are the particulars of the killing of Kallman by his partner, Goldsmith, at Cuina ranch yesterday: Goldsmith was up an early hour for the purpose of coming to the city to attend the wedding of his brother, all dressed and ready for the road, when Kallman objected to his taking so large an amount of money with him. Goldsmith thought best to do so, as he would pay bills here with it. From this a violent dispute ensued, which ended in Kallman's striking Goldsmith with a bridle. Goldsmith drew a pistol and fired 3 shots, killing Kallman. Goldsmith was taken before a justice of the peace at Rincon yesterday and examined. The court admitted him to bail in the sum sum of $1,500.

ARIZONA.

Indian Matters.

PRESCOTT, May 20.—Hualapai Indians are still peaceable. Gen. Kautz has his troops and scouts ready, to assist in the work of putting them back on the reservation, if necessary. It is hoped the Interior Department will consent that they may remain in the mountains, at least during the summer months, and perhaps set them off a reservation, where they will be better satisfied than in the valley of the Colorado.

FARMING ITEMS.

The prospect for fruit is said, to be good in Coos county.

A few of the Benton county farmers are still sowing grain.

In a field in the suburbs of Salem the rye is six feet high and still growing.

The Salem Flouring Mills Company now pay 80 cents per bushel for wheat.

The hop-yards on the island above Corvallis are thriving finely, and promise a heavy yield.

The wheat crop in Washington county looks splendid, likewise the oats and grass, but there has been a little too much dampness for "garden truck."

A letter from North Yamhill, dated May 17, says: "The prospect for good crops was never better than at present. Fruit seems to be in danger. There was a heavy frost last night in this neighborhood. I don't know as any damage has been done."

A correspondent of the Reporter says the growths of Hood River Valley, touching fruit trees and vegetables, are the most gigantic I have ever seen in Oregon. Peaches seem to be their "strong suit,"—perhaps the only safe peach location north of California, and it is good for apples, pears, plums, cherries, blackberries, raspberries, strawberries, gooseberries, in fact, all kinds of berries. As for fish, the mountain trout of Hood river cannot be equaled.

David Newsom in a letter to the Democrat, from Marion county, says: "The fall wheat and meadows are very rank and forward, and fears are had of their lodging. Spring grain looks well. Gardens are about an average. The insects are hard on cabbage plants and turnip tops. Very many Lawton blackberry patches are killed, and many apple, plum and pear trees the same. There will likely be an average crop of fruit here this year. About one-fourth of the spring grain on low lands is yet to sow. A larger acreage of grain will be harvested this year than ever before in Marion county. The present price of grain seems to cheer up our farmers and they think the good time's coming."

Never in the history of Benton county, says the Democrat, have the prospects of the farmers looked brighter than they do now. The winter was open and favorable for work, and thousands of acres of ground were put in condition for seeding, while the uncommonly severe frosts of the past winter have broken up and pulverized the soil as it has not been done for twenty years. The fine weather during early spring and the late rains have combined to give the farmers a chance to sow and plant an immense acreage of grain, and they have not been backward in availing themselves of the opportunity. The consequence is, that perhaps one-third to one-half more grain is sown this year than in any preceding year. As the oldest inhabitant has never known a failure of crops in Oregon we have no fears on that score; and laborers will be plenty to secure the harvest in good shape.

Sheriff E. Livingstone, of Douglas county, last Wednesday turned over to Superintendent Watkinds, of the name named Harold C. Clark, who has been sentenced to five years' imprisonment for horse stealing in Douglas county. Clark was a horse trainer, and exhibited his skill in that line at the State fair four or five years ago.

A CARGO OF SALT IMPREGNATED WITH ARSENIC—HOW THE DISCOVERY WAS MADE—FACTS OF THE CASE.

(From the N. Y. Herald, April 29.)

On March 2d the ship Niagara, chartered by Henderson Brothers, owners of the Anchor Steamship Line, sailed from Liverpool, under command of Capt. McFarlane. She had a cargo of salt and arsenic aboard—1,950 sacks of the former and 100 barrels of the latter, besides some other merchandise, principally chemicals. The salt was stowed in the hold of the vessel and securely packed, the arsenic being in that space of the ship known as "between decks." The Niagara was a staunch vessel, having once been a Cunard steamship, and is considered a fast sailer. On this occasion, however, almost from the outset of the voyage, bad weather set in, and a few days after leaving port the vessel was

MET BY A FRIGHTFUL HURRICANE,

Which laid her on her beam ends, tore many of the sails to shreds, and at length caused the foretopmast to go by the board. In this emergency the horror of the situation was added to by the fact that the cargo, in part, shifted, the barrels of arsenic breaking away, and at every lurch of the ship rolling about without any possibility on the part of the crew, occupied, as it was, with the fate of the vessel itself, to right matters in the hold. Rolling about from side to side, many of the barrels broke open and scattered their contents about the deck. The hatches were battened down, but this was not enough to prevent some of the huge volumes of water from getting through the interstices and partly wetting what had been scattered about. It was with infinite difficulty that the vessel was at length righted after the storm had abated, and the proceedings in her voyage, the cargo in the meantime having been fixed in place, but what had been spoiled swept away. The voyage continued pleasantly for some time longer until the 24th, when the ship

MET ANOTHER STORM,

Only less devastating than the first. Here again there was some trouble with the cargo, but nothing to compare with the first time, and only some arsenic was lost from the barrels which had been more or less damaged before. This was not paid much attention to, as the ship having weathered the second gale as safely as the first, she arrived in the port of New York on April 4th, bearing the marks, however, of her battle with the elements. The arrival of the vessel had been anxiously awaited here, and when the salt was broken immediately and sent by the parties to whom it was consigned to the West, some reaching Chicago and Cincinnati. Captain McFarlane, busy with other duties, did not remark anything as singular in the unloading until several days after some of the salt had been unpacked and sent away. He then remarked that many of the sacks of salt appeared to be coated with a white powder, and that the floor of the "between decks" also had a considerable quantity of the same. It struck him that this could not be salt, and therefore

MUST BE ARSENIC.

So he communicated his suspicion to Messrs. Henderson, the consignees of the Niagara. They immediately, fearing a disaster, put themselves in communication with the consignees of the salt, of whom they were a number, and these gentlemen proceeded to the ship and examined the condition of affairs. They came to the conclusion that the suspicion of the Captain regarding the contamination of the arsenic might possibly be true, as it became evident to them that the white powder which coated the sacks and lay about the decks was not salt. Under these circumstances it was decided to call in the service of a chemist who would report on the matter. In the meantime, telegrams were sent by these gentlemen to all the persons to whom the salt had been sent, not to use it under any circumstances until further information was obtained. In each case these telegrams were received before the salt, and what might have been a serious calamity was averted. Professor Doremus was then called upon and asked to make an examination.

WHAT PROFESSOR DOREMUS SAYS.

Professor Doremus, in conversation last night on the subject, said that he complied with the invitation and went on board the Niagara. Capt. McFarlane was very courteous and showed him through the vessel. He visited the "tween decks" and then the hold, and saw how the accident had happened. It was natural enough, and in such weather could not have been very well prevented. He saw a great deal of the arsenic powder lying around on the decks and also noticed the coating on the sacks of salt. He told the gentlemen who employed him that he would put a veto on the use of the salt until a thorough examination could be made of the salt inside the sacks, to determine whether it had been contaminated or not. He thereupon took the salt to his laboratory and examined it carefully. He found in the specimens what he considered arsenic, scattered through especially that portion of the salt which had been near the outside. It existed in quantities sufficient to make it

DANGEROUS FOR EDIBLE PURPOSES.

Whether it would cause death or not is a question he would not answer. But it might have done so. There was no possible danger of this, however, as the use of the salt had been stopped. It was all of a very fine quality, Ashton and Marshal's salts, and great loss has been entailed by the accident. He supposed that a portion of it would possibly have been good, but he could not tell what portion, and therefore had to condemn the whole. It was not a total loss, however, as it might be used for several purposes besides edible, to preserve skins, for instance. It can only be taken as a misfortune in which nobody is to blame.

At a late hour last Thursday evening intelligence reached McMinnville that a man by the name of Naught had been murdered the day before by a man named Burrows, on the widow Billings' farm, near the Amity and Sheridan road, just over the Polk county line. The Reporter could not get any very precise particulars, but it seems that Burrows had been ejected from Mrs. Billings' farm by the sheriff of Polk county a short time before the fatal occurrence, but went back to see about getting some sheep in which he had a share in the division of the sheep a difficulty arose between these two men, which resulted in Burrows stabbing Naught with a knife, killing him immediately. The homicide mounted a horse and fled as soon as he had done the bloody deed.

Rev. Bishop Morris will be at McMinnville, according to appointment, on Sunday, the 6th day of June, the second Sunday after Trinity. On that day St. James' Church at that place will be consecrated according to the rites of the church. It is a law with Episcopalians that no church can be consecrated to the worship of God so long as one dollar of indebtedness rests against it. St. James' Church could be consecrated to-day for all the law. It stands free of all indebtedness, and Rev. Mr. Summers holds the receipt of the last creditor.

THE UNITED STATES AND A EUROPEAN WAR.

[From the N.Y. Times.]

During the last twenty months, the people of the United States have had their own business troubles to contend with, and these have appeared neither slight nor transient; but they may reasonably comfort themselves with the reflection that they not only are now, but must always be, substantially, free from the financial disturbances which spread through out Europe the moment that a rumor of approaching war is started. The extent of these disturbances, and the manner in which they affect the interests of all classes, are but little understood in our country. We find it difficult to measure an evil of which we see only a few outward symptoms, and of which we can form no complete notion from our own experience. But as a matter of fact the evil is a grave one, reaching the very roots of the prosperity of communities and individuals, and sometimes inflicting wounds the scars of which outlast a generation.

A fair index of the extent to which the interests of all European people are affected by the probabilities of war is to be found in the fluctuations of the various government loans, and the intimate connection between these fluctuations and those experienced by all other securities. When we remember how vast a sum of the savings of modern Europe is invested in some form or other of such securities, and when we reflect that a feeling of uneasiness, or even of uncleanness, which depresses their market value results in a direct loss to the holders, we conceive that a fear of war means a downright diminution of the means of living for large numbers of people. With this diminution comes curtailment of comfort, change of plans, surrender of cherished hopes, and more or less of precisely that kind of suffering which our people have undergone since the panic of 1873.

From this misfortune, resulting from this cause, the people of our own country are comparatively free. It is not conceivable that any complications in European politics could involve us. By our geographical position, and by that wise policy which we owe to the sagacity and firm administration of Washington, which forbids to our Government any intervention in European quarrels, we can view the approach of even the greatest wars on that continent with little concern, so far as our immediate interests are involved. And we are the only one of the great commercial nations of the world that enjoys this immunity. Even Great Britain, now for more than half a century disturbed, by only one considerable war, and that a war not to be compared to those which she had previously waged, is not exempt from the injurious influences that flow from any probable European struggle. The English consols—securities which it is the settled and admirable policy of all parties in the country to protect at all hazards, and which rest on a basis of solid prosperity and unimpeachable financial honor, superior on the whole, to that of any other nation of Europe—feel the real or fancied approach of war in the most serious manner. Other governments securities feel it still more, in proportion as the countries by which they are issued are likely to be drawn into a war.

It is true that the securities of the United States necessarily suffer temporarily from the probability of a European war. The financial markets of the world are too closely linked together to allow any one of them, or any class of securities on any of them, to be always free from the influences which excite or depress the others. But the essential circumstances of the United States are too radically peculiar not to have a marked effect in the long run. Our bonds may fall in the European market from speculative causes, or from a momentary panic, which induces capital to withdraw itself from all investments on the approach of danger, but they are necessarily exempt from that one supreme cause of depreciation, the possibility that the Government will be driven or dragged into a European war. This is an exemption which cannot be too highly appreciated, and it would seem to be the duties of common prudence and interest, as well as of self-respect, to increase in every way the value our securities thus obtain. This can only be done by the faithful determination of all parties to maintain the good faith of the country inviolate under all circumstances. Happily the cloud which demagogism at one time threw over the reputation of the country is now almost entirely dissipated. But it should be remembered that the perfect establishment of national credit is the work of a long period of unbroken fidelity in every regard to the pledges of the Government, and of a scrupulously honest and even generous interpretation of those pledges. The Government credit is an exact standard of the commercial and financial credit of a modern nation. The two are absolutely inseparable. Since we enjoy, therefore, the greatest advantage in the competition for the confidence of the world, by means of our remarkable exemption from European complications, it is obviously our duty to strengthen our interests by the most careful attention to our public credit.

SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 22, 1875.

SAILING WITH THE BREEZE.

More than one circumstance has taken place within the last few months to justify the opinion that the President has concluded to pay more respect to the voice of the people. There is every reason to believe that until the last fall elections, he supposed himself to be stronger than the people, and that even the voice of warning then sent up all over the country was but partially understood, if understood at all, by him. But when the Force bill and the Louisiana usurpation, which were special measures of the President, failed through the opposition of the most distinguished members of his own party, and when the popular voice was again heard in New Hampshire and Connecticut, the Republicans in the former State declaring against the administration and holding their own handsomely before the people, while in the latter they espoused the President's cause and were overwhelmingly defeated, there was abundant evidence that the decision of the fall elections was not to be considered as merely one of those irrational but uncontrollable popular excitements or panics that do sometimes occur, sweeping everything in their course and passing away as suddenly as they came. The recent changes in the cabinet, every one of which has been in the direction of better and more conservative government, would seem to indicate a purpose of the President to conduct his administration a little more on the line he promised, when he said he had no policy to enforce against the will of the people. Especially is this a reasonable inference to be drawn from the appointment of Judge Pierrepont to succeed Williams as Attorney-General. Pierrepont is one of the men who publicly criticised and opposed the course of the Government in the Louisiana complications last winter. His views were exactly the opposite of the views of the then Attorney-General, and his appointment now to the head of the Department of Justice, can hardly be interpreted otherwise than as an indication that the President has determined to change front on that grave subject.

Not less significant, perhaps, is the course of the administration with relation to the investigations going on in Alabama under the auspices of the legislature of that State. While it is true that the Government takes no part in pressing those investigations, it is at the same time true that, with all the means at command, and with apparently great inducements to interpose, no effort is made by the President to produce evidence tending to show the falsity of the charges of corruption and intimidation made against the Republicans in connection with the last election. That the evidence produced before the committee of the legislature, is of the most damaging kind, no one of any party will pretend to deny, and yet nothing is done to rebut it, or to mitigate the severity of its effect on the party. It remains to be seen whether the reformation is to be complete or but partial, and also what is its ulterior purpose.

THE INTERIOR PRESS ON THE POLITICAL SITUATION.

The press of the interior are discussing the approaching Congressional election with considerable animation. There is apparently no agreement, however, as to what the result is likely to be. The Statesman and other Republican papers generally declare the Republicans are in the majority in the State, while the Democratic journals as stoutly maintain that their party is surely the stronger. So far as we have observed the Mercury, which, though in some respects a good party paper, is not distinguished for its prudence or for the correctness of its political calculations, is the only one that ventures to assert that the independent vote will have no influence in the election. This is, in substance, what we understand the Mercury to say. It will probably be undeceived when the returns come in.

The Coos Bay Record thinks the independents will not attempt to run a candidate. It admits that they have the undoubted majority in Douglas county, but thinks they have it nowhere else, or at least that they have lost their power in the State. How or when that loss took place is not stated. On the other hand the Coos Bay News talks independently, and the Benton Democrat notifies both the rings that the people are going to see to it they are represented this time.

It is just amusing to read in the State Rights Democrat that "the fight will be made mainly on national issues, and, so far as the Democracy are concerned, we doubt not on a platform embodying those grand old principles which are the foundation and superstructure of our republican form of government." We hope to be pardoned for suggesting the danger incident to so sudden a change of diet as that would be to the Democratic stomach. Those grand old principles can hardly be said to have been notably in vogue in that party of late years. They are, however, good things to put into a platform of any party, and would vastly improve the average platform of the Democracy.

BIG CAMAS VALLEY.

We have been shown a letter written from Big Camas, Washington Territory, to a gentleman prominently connected with the board of immigration, giving the geographical position and description of that valley. The writer says the valley is 25 miles from Warner's landing on the Columbia river, which latter point is about 40 miles below the Dalles. The valley is also about 25 miles from the Upper Cascades, and lies near the foot of Mount Adams. It is twenty miles long and from one to five in width. There are now living in the valley four families, and four bachelors. The latter live by hunting and trapping, which keep them busy in winter and permit them to be idle in the summer. Of the families two have been there two years, and the others have just arrived. The climate there is by no means severe, there being seldom a day that could be considered very cold. There were only two days last winter when the cold was at all severe, which is about as good a showing as we could make at Portland. The land of the valley is a rich black mould, exceedingly productive, not unlike our beaver-dam lands; that of the timbered land is a reddish loam and also produces very well. The grass is reported as very fine, making it an excellent stock country. For many miles to the northeast the country is rolling and open, with abundance of bunch grass. Lands in the valley can be taken up under the homestead or pre-emption laws, and the public surveys have been extended over a part of them.

For healthfulness, the writer thinks this region superior to almost any other. He says there is no occasion for doctors there. He lived some years in Portland, and during all the time had sickness in his family, and had to pay large doctor's bills every year. During the two years of his residence in the Big Camas valley his family have enjoyed continuous good health.

All things considered, this must be a very desirable region for persons who want to settle down on the frontier, and build up themselves and the country together.

MEASURES.

The precise nature and scope of the international metric convention, of which mention is made in the dispatches, we do not know. The subject of establishing a uniform system of measures in the different commercial nations, has more than once been seriously discussed, and the desirableness of such a system is everywhere conceded. The difficulty is to devise such a system as can be adopted by all the different nations, without so much inconvenience in the transition as to make it practically a failure. The measures of commerce, like commerce itself, are not easily regulated by law. It is easy enough to enact and enforce laws for the enforcement of honesty in the employment of the weights and measures already in use, but to compel the use or disuse of a given system is quite a different matter. There is, however, so general a sense of the need of some uniform system, and so general a feeling that the system most convenient would be a decimal system, that it might be possible to put such a system, once agreed upon and defined by a conference of representatives of the leading commercial nations, into practical operation.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.—Willamette University.—We obtain the following information concerning the examination and closing exercises of the above institution of learning from a private letter, dated at Salem under date of the 20th inst.: "The following programme may receive a slight change or two, but is correct in general outline: Examinations will begin as usual—the time for examinations to be the closing week, on the week previous to the closing week, on Friday evening of which (June 18th,) a lecture will be delivered to the societies of the future by Rev. R. Bentley. That gentleman, of course, has his own choice of subject, but a general desire is expressed that his address be a general one, entitled 'Town and Gown.' The anonus lecture delivered on the occasion. On Sabbath, June 20th, the annual Baccalaureate sermon will be preached by Dr. Hindley, of Portland; the above named gentleman having accepted a special invitation. The Monday evening following is to be devoted to the annual exhibition of the Hesperian society—the day, to final examinations. On Tuesday afternoon, the prize speaking takes place. There are four speakers—each society being represented—W. B. Allen from the Hesperian; J. S. Wortman, Alice Mary Powell, Concordia, and Bertha Moores, Athenaum. Also, reading of standing in the following afternoon. In the evening will be the Commencement exercises, of the medical department. Wednesday evening is appointed for the annual proceedings and reunion of the Alumni, and a very pleasant time is anticipated. The exercises of Commencement proper will occur on Thursday, June 24th, in the afternoon and evening. There are six candidates for graduating honors: Miss Georgiana Conover and Miss Lizzie Jory, M. G. Royal, H. C. Foster, A. Starr and W. Starr. Bishop J. T. Peck will deliver the closing address."

FROM FORT WRANGELL.—A few days ago the steamer Otter arrived at Victoria from Fort Wrangell, with a few passengers. The Stikine river was not open when the Otter was at Wrangell; but large quantities of ice was coming down, and it was supposed to be rapidly breaking up. The Gertrude left shortly after the Otter, and reached Wrangell in safety, and the Glenora was sighted between Point Stanhope and Cape Onslow, about 45 miles from Wrangell. The Otter brought down neither mails nor express from Cassiar. Johnston left Wrangell to try to get up the river ten days before the Otter arrived. A correspondent, writing to a late Victoria paper from Wrangell under date of May 7th, says: "The river is open about six miles up, and huge blocks of ice are floating down. It was very cold this morning. The Hope got under steam this morning at 8 o'clock and started up the river. The steamer Gertrude will probably go up the river in a day or two. She has a large freight and passengers she can take. This is a first-rate place for saving money, there being not a drop of liquor in town, it being a prohibited article."

COMPLIMENTARY TO PORTLAND.—In the last issue of the Vancouver Register we find the following paragraph concerning this city: "Portland has become quite a city, as to beauty, wealth and population. Her public buildings will compare favorably with those of any city in the Union, and her improvements are generally of the most substantial kind, and with the large number of steamers and ships in port from time to time she has the appearance of one of the finest cities of the nation of her size. When we take into consideration the fact of her central position as to trade and commerce, with her river and railroad privileges, backed by her immense wealth, her enterprising citizens, her many most excellent papers—secular and religious—as published in that city, we are ready to conclude that she has a bright future as the second city on this coast, and in time we have no doubt but that she will be the Philadelphia of the great West."

SILVER MINES.—A gentleman who resides in the Foster settlement, informs us there is considerable excitement in that section over the recent discovery of rich silver-bearing quartz on Eagle creek, but a few miles distant from where he lives. Quite a number of persons from Oregon City have gone out prospecting there, and among those who are in quest of the argentiferous metal is Mr. Fuller, the ex-county clerk of Clackamas county. A quantity of the ore has been sent to this city for assay, and we learn that the result proves very encouraging. There are a number of men engaged in mining operations, and our informant states that he can plainly hear the blasting rock from his house.

FOR DROWNED.—A statement was published several weeks ago, to the effect that a young man named Wm. Ware was recently drowned near Los Angeles. It was supposed, and stated at the time, that the person drowned was a young herdsman of the same name who was in the employ of the O. C. R. R. Co. several years ago, and well known in this city. Under date of Dallas, Texas, May 6th, we are in receipt of a letter from that young "railroader," in which he states: "I wish you to state that I am still living, and that the report was erroneous, as I have not been in California since 1873, and have been running on the Texas and Pacific Railroad as conductor for a couple of years."

REV. THOMAS GUARD.—This noted clergyman and orator has been distinguished in Ireland, his native land, in Canada and Australia. The Mt. Vernon church, Baltimore, recently part with him. He is about to occupy one of the leading pulpits of San Francisco. Before entering upon his new field he will make a tour of the Columbia. His lectures cover a wide field, and show great fertility of thought. Some of his themes are: "Man's relations to the earth," "Body and soul." "The three Johns." "Love and its possibilities." "An evening in my library." "Self-government." His terms are $100 per night with societies.

APPLICATIONS FOR TEACHING.—At a meeting of the board of directors of school district No. 1, in Portland, held May 20th inst., the following resolution was passed: Resolved, That it is desirable to procure the best talent to teach in the public schools, and to that end invitations are hereby extended to persons wishing situations as teachers, to make application in writing, directed to the board of directors of said district, applications to be presented on or before the first day of July, 1875.

OUR THANKS.—We take this occasion to express our most sincere thanks to Mr. J. Bacon, the efficient R. W. Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F., which has just concluded its labors, for many favors and courtesies shown us during the continuance of the session. Mr. Bacon is not only a very competent officer, and worthily occupies the position to which he has been re-elected, but is a courteous and obliging gentleman.

S. S. T. U.—The Sunday School Temperance Union will meet again to-morrow at 8 o'clock in the Hall-street church. The theme for the hour will be "Personal Responsibility." The committee have prepared an unusually interesting programme, consisting of reading, resolutions, five-minute speeches, and singing. All the Sunday school and select clubs. The meeting will be free to everybody, and all are invited to take part in the exercises.

FALLING.—The latest telegraphic news from up the Columbia river will be cheering intelligence to those who reside contiguous to the stream between the mouth of the Willamette and Astoria. A dispatch from Wallula yesterday stated that during the past four and twenty hours, the Columbia at that point had fallen one inch and a half. A steamboat had just arrived from Lewiston and reported that the waters of the Snake river were receding.

FROM SOUTH AMERICA.—About two years ago, Mr. Wm. Ewing, a gentleman who had resided near Portland for some time, removed to South America with his family. His object was to permanently reside there. A few weeks ago, Mr. Ewing returned with his family, thoroughly disgusted with the climate and soil of South America, and fully satisfied to make Oregon his future home.

PLEASANT AFFAIR.—The strawberry festival at the Unitarian chapel last evening passed off in a most agreeable manner to the large number of ladies and gentlemen present. Old and young mingled together in social intercourse, partaking occasionally of strawberries and other luxuries spread before them in unlimited quantities.

Resolved, That Rebekah Degree Lodge be entitled to representation in this Grand Lodge upon the same conditions as are subordinate lodges of this jurisdiction.

Resolved, That all Daughters of Rebekah be entitled to membership in the Widows' and Orphans' Relief Association upon the same conditions as are members of subordinate lodges.

Your committee would report that they have examined the subject-matter therein contained, and it is the opinion of the committee that to adopt the first resolution would be in contravention with the proceedings of the G. L. W. S. [see journal, 1871, page 5,190.]

We would further report that we find no law prohibiting Daughters of Rebekah becoming members of the Widows' and Orphans' Relief Association.

We therefore offer the following:

Resolved, That Daughters of the degree of Rebekah in good standing in said lodges be admitted to membership in the Widows' and Orphans' Relief Association upon the same condition as are members of subordinate lodges.

Resolved, That the committee be discharged from further consideration of first resolution.

Preparations are being pushed forward at the new postoffice for the early occupation of that department.

On Tuesday evening the members of the Grand Lodge I. O. O. F., paid a visit to the insane asylum, and yesterday a large delegation visited the Oregon museum.

Mr. Metschan, county treasurer of Grant county, brought down, Thursday evening, some twenty pounds of cinnabar from a ledge discovered lately some 14 miles from Canyon City.

Says the S. F. Call of the 16th inst.: "Mr. D. W. C. Neufield, well-known in our musical circles, is about to enter into the honorable estate of matrimony, with Miss Katie Mahoney, daughter of David Mahoney, Esq." This will be interesting news to many persons in Portland.

BALL AND BAT.

A match game will be played this afternoon on the grounds in the rear of the academy by the Young Americans and the Mystics. The former club will appear in new uniform.

The championship record for April shows the Champions (Boston club) in the van, with the Athletics and Hartfords standing second and third. The Centennials, the new club of Philadelphia, have been unfortunate, losing so far the greater number of games they have played for the championship.

With a fair prospect of continued pleasant weather, we may expect to hear soon from the Arcadian, Pioneer, College and Alline clubs—the latter of Salem—and others. The overflow of the East Portland grounds and the bad condition of the academy grounds, besides the backward spring, has had a discouraging effect on practicing, so that spirits are dampened, and muscle is flabby when it should be solidifying.

VISIT TO OREGON CITY.—The steamer Calliope has been chartered by several members of the different lodges of Good Templars to leave the foot of Yamhill street this evening at six o'clock, for Oregon City, where the excursionists will make a fraternal visit to Willamette Lodge, of the latter place.

Scores of ladies and gentlemen may be seen going in and out of Wood's Museum every day.

The Postoffice has not been removed yet, nor has that bridge across the Wallamet come to the surface, but it is a positive fact that BECK & WALDMAN have the largest and best assortment of Spring and Summer Clothing, which they are offering to the public at exceedingly low prices. They continue to keep a full line of Youth's Clothing, and parents should bear this in mind when they desire to treat their darling boy" to a new suit.

The pleasant expression on the faces of those making their exit from the Clothing Establishment of JOS. KOHN, opposite the National Bank, is an indication that they have been treated well by the proprietor. Kohn knows what his customers want, and he invariably makes it a point to "fill the bill." His Stock of Clothing, Furnishing Goods, etc., is complete and the prices are regulated to suit all classes.

At The GREAT EASTERN CLOTHING STORE they are offering the finest Clothing to be found in the city, at prices that defy competition. There you can select from the latest styles which are laid in upon the arrival of every steamer from San Francisco. A full line of Furnishing Goods, Youths' Suits, Valises and Trunks constantly on hand. Observe the sign, "Great Eastern Clothing Store." W. HARRIS, Proprietor, 125 First street.

NOTICE TO THE LADIES.

Would respectfully announce that I have a first-class Dressmaker and Cutter, and hold myself in readiness to put forth first-class work, either Ladies' or Children's Garments. Also, constantly on hand, a large assortment of sewing machine needles and attachments for each and every machine.

MRS. E. E. PARSONS,
may18d1TuThSatw 73 Third street.

PLEASURE BOATS.

I have a number of Sail and Row Boats ready at any moment to let at reasonable charges. Boats made to order.

JOHN LACHAPELLE,
Foot of Pine St.

DR. S. J. BARBER,
Late of Chicago,
DENTIST, with Hatch & Thompson.
Office—No. 109 First street, opposite Occidental Hotel, Portland, Ogn.

FOR THE LADIES.

Alpacas, without luster, are worn in mourning.

The newest neckties display matelesse figures, and the effect is very rich.

Overskirts are never lined, and very few of the dress skirts, except by a facing.

Sleeveless jackets made of guipure insertion and velvet (black) will be again worn through the spring and summer.

Jet trimmings are not to be abandoned, and are still used upon the handsomest black silks, overdresses and wraps.

For general wear, such as for shopping and for the house, for one in mourning, Tunise cloth is the most serviceable.

Breakfast caps are as much worn as ever; those in the Charlotte Corday and Martha Washington styles being most in favor.

In parasols there are no marked novelties, and those sensible styles which prevailed last summer will be popular during this season.

Among the most stylish overdresses are tablers and fichu-jackets, made of alternate stripes of Lilau braid, and beaded Yak lace.

The Spanish comb is much in demand now, and is to most faces becoming. Side combs are always much in favor, and are used for holding back stray tresses.

Short puffed sleeves with high bodies, a fashion of twenty years ago, are revived, and will be largely adopted during the coming summer by young ladies.

Bodies of all thin dresses, lawns included, are lined with silk or linen the ground color of the dress. Low linings to high waists and sleeves are entirely obsolete.

The fashion of colored stockings, both for adults and children, so far from waning is evidently increasing, and amounts to almost a furore. Some of the new specimens exhibit broken stripes, and an entire novelty are cotton hose, brought out in solid colors—blue, red, &c.—and these are expressly designed for traveling, seaside and country use.

AMUSEMENTS.

This evening Mr. J. C. Blake will take a benefit at Ono Fino theater. There are a number of volunteers for the occasion. The principal feature of the performance will be a scene from "Othello," in which Mr. C. J. Graham will appear as the "Moor," the beneficiary assuming the role of "Iago."

Mr. Gilder's concert this evening at Masonic Hall promises to be one of the notable events of the season. By reference to the programme published in another column, it will be seen that a rich musical treat will be given to those who may attend. Madam Babcock, Miss Blanche Galton, and Messrs. Whilhn, Kay and Gilder will assist on the occasion, and, together with the marvelous manipulation of Mr. Gilder on the piano, a combination of sparkling and brilliant musical morceaux will be rendered, making it a musical event of importance. The price of admission is only 50 cents, and as no extra charge is made for reserved seats, there will doubtless be a great demand for them. An excellent programme will be given, at the matinee this afternoon, which takes place at 2 o'clock at Masonic Hall. We shall confidently expect to see a crowded hall on both occasions.

GENERAL MICHLER.—This gentleman went down the Columbia early the present week to make an official visit to several points. He returned home on Thursday evening. While absent Gen. Michler inspected, in company with Capt. Kewpff, inspector of this light-house district, the new lighthouse at Point Adams, and made the necessary arrangements for the completion of the building. He also visited Fort Stevens and the day-beacon recently constructed at the Hog's Back. The principal object of Gen. Michler's visit was to select a suitable location for a lighthouse depot. Such a location we learn has been designated. The place selected where the depot for supplies will be constructed is Phillips' Point, about two miles below Astoria, and comprises two acres of land, belonging to Col. Taylor.

GOOD NIGHT.

If I could only lay me down to rest
Gracious, my weary hands upon my breast
And shut my troubled eyes without a fear
Knowing, that they would never open here—
How blissful it must be both worlds in sight
To say my last good night.

If only from the fruitless cares of time
To truths eternal I could step my climb
No longer count the graves whereon I tread,
But in one moment be all comforted—
If such could be what joy in upward flight
To sing my final good night.

I watch the weeds and flowers thro' about the moor,
I look and lo! at noontide they are gone
The wings of crow are never stirred
I weep but weeping brings not back my dead
Life of would be reveal'd by breaking night
How sweet to say good night.

This flooding tide of yearnings wi I not cease
I cannot reach to touch the lips of peace
Nor can I gather to my sobbing heart
The white winged angels God has set apart,
Yet haply I may in them all meet that
After some tired good night

Wi I wonder then that I should long to rest
Casting my weary hand up to my breast
To shut my troubled eyes without a fear
Knowing that they would never open here
To say to earth with heaven alone in sight
My rapturous good night

AN APRIL FOOL

A PRACTICAL JOKE RATHER ROUGH TOOK ON A NEWARK MAN

From the N Y Dispatch.

Mr Sankey, of William street, thinks this April foolery ought to be made a subject for capital punishment He is willing that old bricks should be strewn plentifully upon the sidewalks for every fool to kick, but when it comes to sending a man a hundred miles from home at the risk of getting a leg mashed, a pocket book stolen, and a black eye, the affair becomes rather atrocious.

On Thursday, precisely at 9 58 A M Sankey met an intimate friend on Market street, near the depot The friend approached him with a troubled air and said "Sankey, old fellow, I am sorry for you, but why in the world did you allow him to get so intimate with your wife?"

This was Sankey's tenderest point and the question threw him entirely off his guard Mrs Sankey is a handsome, rosy-cheeked little woman of twenty three and Sankey is forty Though he loves her tenderly, he is mortally jealous of every man who speaks to her He instantly responded to his friend's question by exclaiming

"For God's sake, what do you mean"

The friend said

"You have no time to lose, they are going to elope on that train, and it don't stop this side of Philadelphia."

Sankey wanted to hear no more As the train came thundering up to the depot he defied 'Pop Baldwin's" gate and big stock, and managed to get on board without purchasing a ticket He passed through car after car, but could see nothing of his wife and her reputed lover Though mad with jealous rage Sankey was the last man to provoke a scene It occurred to him that they might be in the sleeping-car, but the conductor reminded him that it was a day train, and that they did not take on a sleeping-car until they arrived at Pittsburgh Could it be possible that his own wife would be able to disguise herself so that he would not know her? That bitter conclusion forced itself upon him, and he attempted to scrutinize the features of every unveiled lady on the train Failing to discover, the object of his search, he seated himself doggedly near a door and awaited events When the train reached Philadelphia Sankey was the first man out He stamped with both feet soon and was rewarded with a terribly contused ankle and some ugly scratches about the face Yet the pain from these wounds was trifling compared with the deeper pangs that tortured his jealous heart. He propped himself as well as he could and watched the passengers coming off the train There was a tall, squarely-built gentleman that Sankey had often seen in Newark, with a small, 'roly poly" looking lady leaning upon his arm.

"Ah, ah!" thought Sankey, "I have not seen this couple before"

He limped up to the pair and said, rather abruptly

"Madam, will you please lift your veil"

The gentleman was, of course, indignant and, Sankey, now completely crazed with passion and jealousy, wanted to know, What business hate you to be running away with my wife, sir?"

There was only one way to answer such an astonisher as that. The gentleman planted one with his right knuckle under Sankey's left eye, and brought him to grass. In the melee Sankey's new eight dollar hat rolled under a moving freight truck and was smashed as flat as a flounder. The gentleman escaped, and a "cop," after the Philadelphia fashion, "rushed up and arrested Sankey, after the fuss was over. While he was still in custody at the depot there came a dispatch from Newark, saying:

"Stop and hold Jeremiah Sankey, (describing him), left Newark, N J, on the 10 A M fast line, supposed under a fit of temporary insanity." MARIA SANKEY."

(Signed.)

A ray of light began to steal through Jeremiah's brain as he read the dispatch, which was handed him by the officer

"Oh! my!" he exclaimed, wiping the cold perspiration from his brow; "and if you want to find the biggest ass and the cussedest April fool in the United States, you've got on a red-hot scent of one now."

Then he "rose to explain," and concluded by appealing to the policeman to "let him go home to Marm." A five dollar bill helped to convince the officer that it was all right, and Sankey left for home on the next train It is needless to state that his loving little wife caressed him fondly, wept over his misfortunes, put him to bed, made him tea and toast, and bound up his wounds. Sankey has been as gentle to her as a sucking dove ever since they do not mention the cause of his affliction, but it will be dangerous for that friend who fooled him to be lying around loose when Sankey is restored to his fighting weight

ANOTHER PASSAGE IN THE LIFE OF S F BUTTERWORTH

We find among the obituary notices in the New York Times of the 8th instant the following, which, we believe, contains some interesting facts not hitherto published concerning the late Samuel F Butterworth

Samuel F Butterworth, whose death in San Francisco was announced yesterday, was born at or near Newburg, in this State He came into prominence during the excitement attending the killing of Philip Barton Key by Gen Sickles at Washington early in the year 1859 Mr Butterworth who was then superintendent of the assay office in this city was a confidential friend of Sickles, and was aware of the domestic troubles which led to the crime He was present with Sickles when Key was shot and his cool bearing on that occasion induced suspicions of a complicity on his part which led to unsuccessful efforts on the part of Mr Key's friends for his arrest But Butterworth, among other immense litigations left to be paid on the New Amalen mining property After enormous expense he carried the suit, and was sent to California to superintend the mine, with a salary of $20,000 a year He was inflexible in his business transactions, a bitter enemy and a faithful friend and although his unpopularity was great when he first visited the coast, he became a power At the time of his death it is estimated that he was worth $7 000 000, mainly made in lands and real estate

There is a fair degree of activity in financial matters, but it is not developing any new features of importance The terms upon which financial favors are granted both at Chicago and in the outside parties are easier to the borrowers than has prevailed for some months in our city, but may still seem high to persons who come from those states where interest is 6 per cent per annum There are those who claim that rates are still too high and who are constantly claiming for lower rates of interest but if the rate is reduced by stagnation of enterprise we cannot see that the reduction is a desirable thing A leading journal of New York city on this subject says that low rates of interest are always to be found with low wages to the working classes and a consequent decrease in the volume of trade The journal referred to says

To follow out the theory of these low rates of interest, financiers to-day call on Congress to declare that if gold should come to a standstill and if on capital would be so abundant that instead of 5 or 6 per cent. capital would seek employment at 1 or 2 per cent. Low rates of interest are always the index of small profits of trade and of a general tendency to economize. But there is a point at which the laboring classes and small traders are in danger of being economized out of existence.

Domestic Produce

There are no changes in quotations of domestic produce and trade in this particular line is not very active Theo farmers are not all quite done with their spring work and those that are show but little disposition to "feel" the markets as the surplus of last year's crops is principally out of first hands There is some wheat yet held back but most of it is off the lines of transportation and much of that yet kept from sale will be carried over till next harvest. The total exports of wheat and flour shipped out of the State so far this season will reach near 1000 tons, and good judges claim that the remainder will equal not more than 1 000@ 0 000 tons. Shipments of flour to the San Francisco market are still quite large the steamer Idaho carrying over 3,000 sacks and the schooner Hera, to-day over 10,000 Oregonian which will sail to-morrow, will take a large quantity The stock of oats in the hands of dealers here is not much more than sufficient just now to supply the California trade, and but few further large shipments will probably be made before harvest. Potatoes of good quality for table use are in fair request jobbing occasionally at 90 per bushel Bacon is in very fair supply but rates are moderately firm Eggs are quotable a little weaker at 11@1 cents per dozen Chickens are plentiful but prices are still $4@4 25 per dozen

The wool market shows but little animation so far and but few lots of the spring clip have as yet reached the market the recent rains having checked shearing We advise growers by all means to use the utmost care in preparing their wool for market as it seems to be a determination on the part of buyers to pay full prices only for choice lots while dirty burry or mixed fleeces will be discarded or taken at very low rates While there is more distinction made now than in former years there has never been a season when it would not have paid the wool grower to sort and pack in a convenient and clean way all the fleeces which he sells
